

ABOUT LISTENING ANALYSES

Imagine you could harvest the collective wisdom of your organisation...

What is a listening analysis

- The listening analysis offered by Human Facts AG provides you with a systematic way to “listen” to your people and main stakeholders about their viewpoints, ideas, opinions and experience around a critical topic in focus.
- The online survey format with open ended questions collects narrative data that is as rich as 1:1 interviews but allows large scale voicing - easily up to 100 - in a much faster way - around 4-6 weeks

What you gain

- Harvest collective inspirations and ideas on business opportunities, improvements, innovations
- Spread collective best practices and support learning across units
- Reach alignment and shared understanding across businesses, functions and geographies
- Being aware about controversial views and concerns early in transformations and reduce failure risks.

When it pays off most

It is a good instrument for a management to begin and prepare any kind of collective transformation, change or engagement process:

- For collective ideation processes, e.g. to identify new business opportunities, new services or product ideas, new strategies
- For collective identification processes, e.g. with a new strategic direction, leadership mindset or culture change
- For collective engagement processes, e.g. starting the implementation of a new business model or strategy

How it is done
